PLAYER LEVEL GUIDE

Aligned to the Padel Australia Player Rating Guide

You don't need an official rating to pick a level. Find the description that most closely matches how you play now.

LEVEL & RATING	THE STANDARD	WHERE YOU FIT
BEGINNER 1.0 – 1.5	New to padel, or only a handful of games in. You are learning the rules, scoring, court positioning and the fundamental shots. Serving, returning and sustaining a rally are still developing, and you may have limited experience playing the ball off the glass.	You belong here if: You're still learning the game and developing the basic skills needed to comfortably play a match.
BEGINNER + 1.5 – 2.0	Past your first few games and you understand how padel is played. You can serve, return and take part in rallies, particularly at a slower pace, and you are starting to understand doubles positioning, moving to the net and using the glass.	You belong here if: You understand the game and can play points and short rallies, but you're still developing consistency, positioning and confidence.
BEGINNER ++ 2.0 – 2.5	A regular player becoming comfortable in full matches. You keep the ball in play at slow to medium pace with more control over serve, return and groundstrokes, and you are starting to use volleys, overheads and the glass. Accuracy can still drop when rallies quicken.	You belong here if: You can comfortably play a full match and maintain rallies, but you're still developing accuracy, shot selection, glass play and consistency at higher speeds.
INTERMEDIATE 3.0 – 3.5	An established player, confident and consistent at medium pace. You understand doubles positioning, defend using the glass and move comfortably between the back of the court and the net. Volleys and overheads are becoming reliable and you construct points rather than simply returning the ball.	You belong here if: You're comfortable in all areas of the court, understand positioning and basic tactics, and can consistently compete with other experienced club players.
INTERMEDIATE ADVANCED 3.5 – 4.0	A strong, experienced club player who holds up at a faster pace. You defend confidently with the glass, your net play is effective and your volleys and overheads are reliable. You construct points with your partner, anticipate play and move between defence and attack.	You belong here if: You're a strong intermediate player who can compete consistently at higher speeds, construct points tactically and use a broad range of attacking and defensive shots.

PLAYER LEVEL FAQ

How levels work at Padel Logan

Why do player levels exist?

Levels keep matches fair and enjoyable. Put players of a similar standard together and the games flow, the rallies last, and everyone gets more out of the session.

Where do these levels come from?

They are aligned to the Padel Australia Player Rating Guide, so the level you play at here means the same thing elsewhere in Australian padel.

Do I need an official rating?

No. Read the descriptions in the Player Level Guide and pick the one that most closely matches how you play at the moment.

What are the levels?

Five: Beginner (1.0 – 1.5), Beginner + (1.5 – 2.0), Beginner ++ (2.0 – 2.5), Intermediate (3.0 – 3.5) and Intermediate Advanced (3.5 – 4.0).

Is this about excluding players?

No. Everyone belongs at Padel Logan. Levels are about matching people well, not keeping anyone out.

What if I am not sure which level I am?

Start at the level that best describes your current ability, or talk to one of our coaches. If you are regularly one of the strongest players in your group, it is probably time to move up.

Can I move up over time?

Yes, and we expect you to. Most players move between levels as their game develops.

What about Advanced players?

The Padel Australia guide continues past 4.0 into Advanced. There are fewer players at that standard right now, so we do not run a separate Advanced category.

So can Advanced players still play here?

Absolutely. Dedicated Advanced sessions may not always be running, but you are very welcome to book a court and organise matches against players of a similar standard.

Can I still organise a game with friends?

Of course. Levels apply to our organised sessions. Book a court and play with whoever you like.

Does my level change what I pay?

No. Court hire rates and membership benefits are the same whatever level you play at.
